

Hannah Rubinton—Economist (April 2020)

Joined the Bank Staff April, 2020

Education PhD Economics, Princeton University, 2020
BA Economics and Mathematics, McGill University, 2012

Areas of Interest Economic Geography, Macroeconomics, Trade

Working Papers

"The Role of Establishment Size in the City-Size Earnings Premium in Spain," with Charly Porcher and Clara Santamaria, Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis Working Paper 2020-029A, September 2020.

"The Geography of Business Dynamism and Skill Biased Technical Change," Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis Working Paper 2020-020A, July 2020.

"Inequality in the Welfare Costs of Disinflation," with Benjamin Pugsley, Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis Working Paper 2020-021A, December 2019.

Other Publications

"The Geography of Business Dynamism and Skill-Biased Technical Change," Working Paper , Job Market Paper, posted December 2019

"Inequality in the Welfare Costs of Disinflation," with Benjamin Pugsley, Working Paper , unpublished, posted December 2019

"The Role of Establishment Size in the City-Size Premium in Spain," with Charly Porcher and Clara Santamaria, Working Paper , unpublished, posted September 2019